NC State to Host Public Forum on Ethics in Time of War

What: Dr. Jack D. Kem, associate professor at the U.S. Army Command and General Staff College and retired army officer, will participate in a North Carolina State University public forum on “Teaching Ethics in a Time of War.” The forum will include a presentation by Kem, a panel discussion on national security, civil liberty and the ethical basis for decision making, and an audience question-and-answer session.

Who: The event is sponsored by NC State’s School of Public and International Affairs in the College of Humanities and Social Sciences.

When: Monday, Oct. 23, from 6:30 to 7:45 p.m.

Where: Room 320 of Brooks Hall on NC State’s main campus. Brooks Hall is located on Pullen Drive.

Cost: The event is free and open to the public.

Contact: For more information, contact NC State’s public administration department at 919/515-5159.
